centers. He was then admitted to the Swinging Learning Center at Level-1.

After coming to the education center, some of his behavior has changed. Now he participates in games with others, wears clean clothes, washes hands before eating . He can also speak English and Burmese alphabet and write a few. He can take sessions, write on the board, he can even do TPR for everyone.

Tree Planting: Continued Efforts of Students in Care

Although the school is closed, Araf comes to water the trees. Photo - Jilani, P.O. Camp-14.

The Coast Foundation has planted 15 to 20 different species of plants in each of its learning centers in 2022, as it does every year. Before and after planting, students are taught the benefits of tree planting and care techniques.

Araf a level-2 student at the Venus Learning Center, Coast Foundation. His love for the tree is shown when he waters the trees in the center and protects the children from falling leaves or destroying the fence while they are playing.

With the government's ongoing restrictions, the centers will be closed and the cleaning staff will be the last hope for regular center maintenance. If the learning centers are closed during the COVID period, the movement of students to the learning center will be stopped. But students like Araf will visit the centers regularly to take care of the trees as much as possible.
